Welcome

Explore

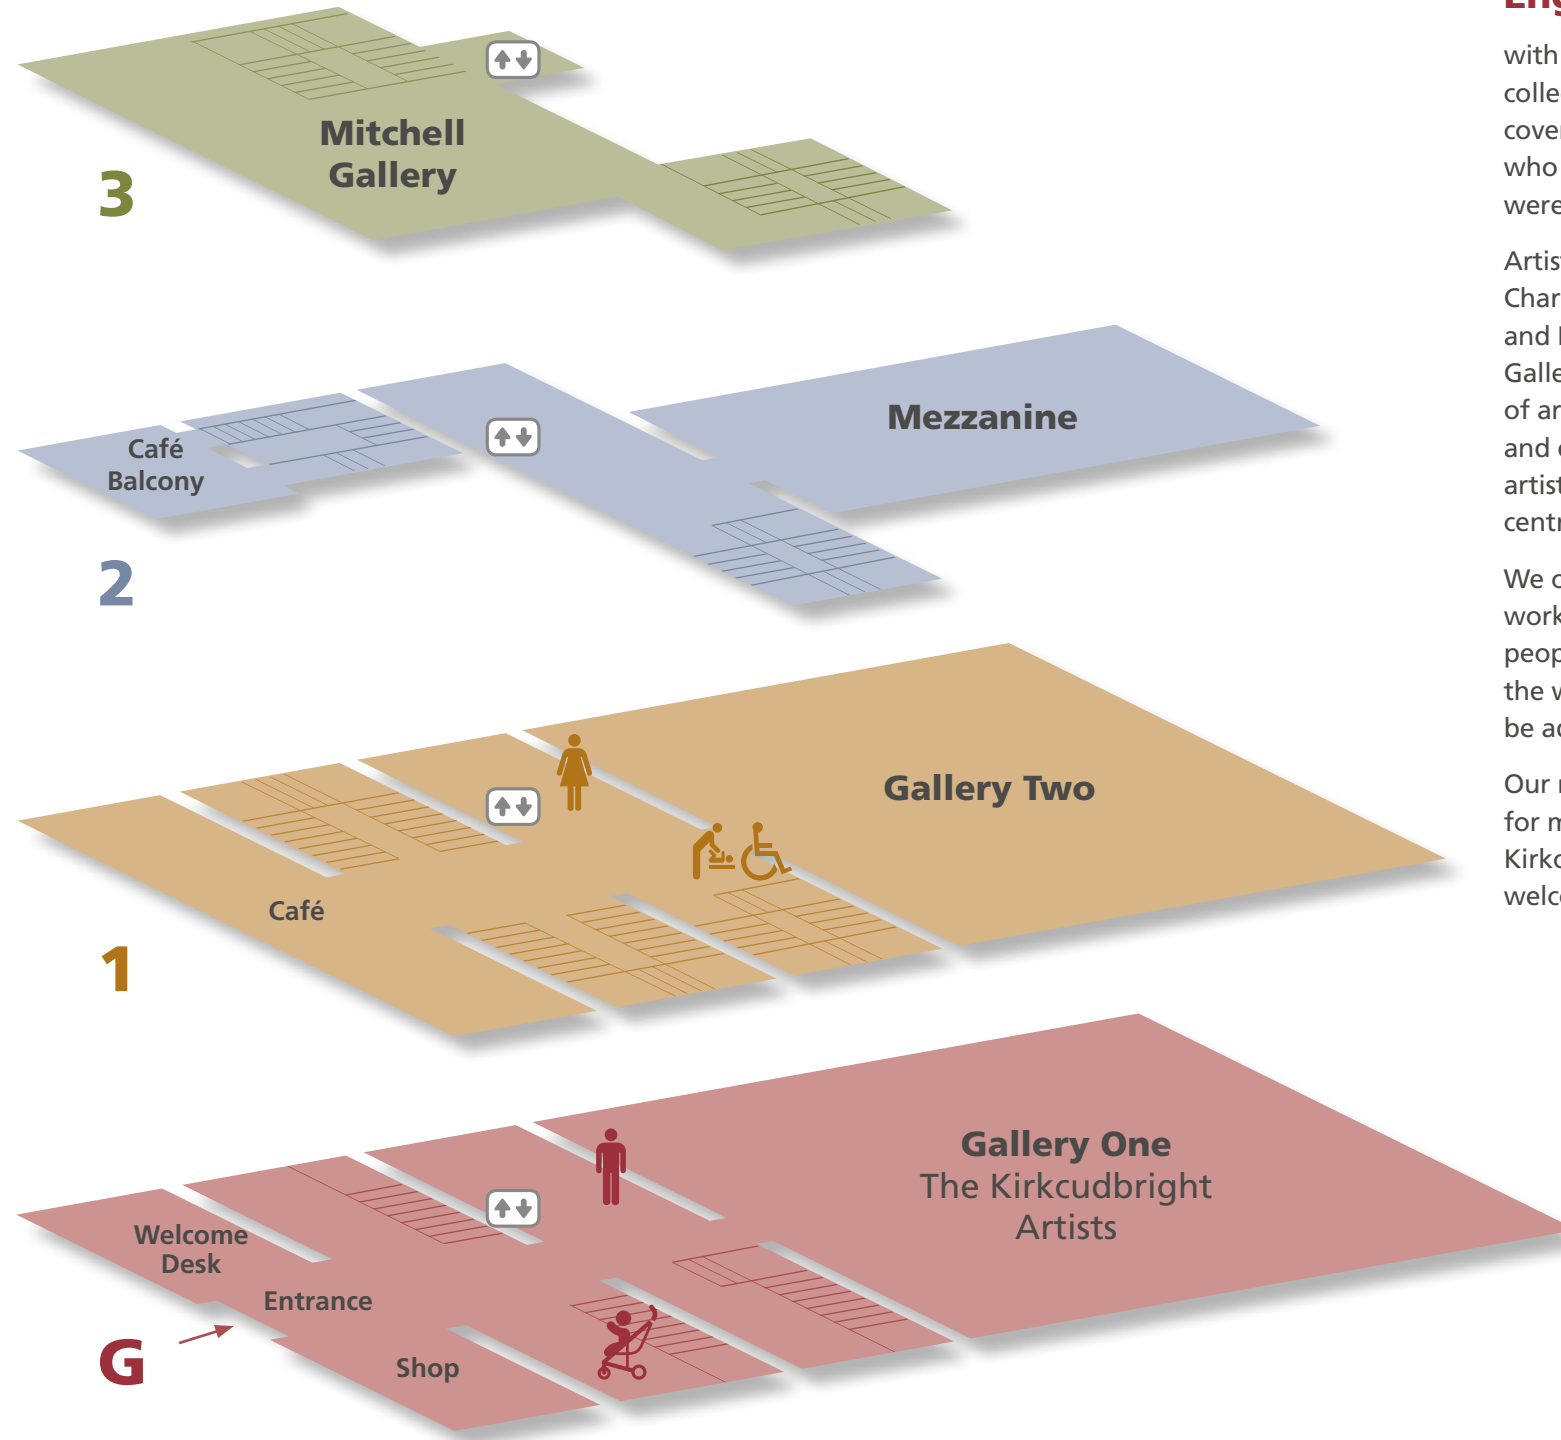

our amazing building in the former Town Hall in Kirkcudbright. This B listed 19th century building has been transformed into a spectacular contemporary art gallery.

The ground floor gallery presents the story of Kirkcudbright and the surrounding area and its development as an artists' colony, from the mid 19th century to the present day.

The large exhibition space on the first floor presents a changing programme of nationally significant exhibitions, which may reflect an aspect of the town's artistic history and the surrounding countryside, or present painting, printmaking, sculpture, design and crafts, in contrast to our own collections.

The mezzanine, directly above, is a new level within the building, where a range of activities and events are accessible throughout the year, for all ages. When not in use for events, this space can be used by visitors as a rest space. The glass side walls also provide views down to the first floor temporary exhibition gallery.

Slightly above the mezzanine level, at the front of the building, is our third floor temporary exhibition space, which will host smaller displays of fine and applied art.

Engage

with Kirkcudbright Galleries' nationally significant collection of paintings, drawings, illustrations, book covers, ceramics and sculpture, created by artists who worked in and around Kirkcudbright or who were visitors to the town.

Artists include John Faed, E A Hornel, Jessie M King, Charles Oppenheimer, S J Peploe, Robert Sivell and Phyllis Bone, whose artworks can be found in Gallery One on the ground floor. Listen to readings of artists' letters through the telephone handsets and explore additional information about the artists through the Knowledge Box located in the centre of the gallery.

We offer a programme of activities, events, workshops, talks and courses for adults, young people and children throughout the year. Ask at the welcome desk for our current programme or to be added to the e-mailing list.

Our mezzanine space is available to book for meetings and events when not in use by Kirkcudbright Galleries. Please enquire at the welcome desk.
